BEDESEME BLOG

In March 2015, two absolutely crazy guys started a discussion about the fetish scene in the Iberian Peninsula (Spain & Portugal) and why there weren't that many fetish models, designers and photographers present in the international fetish scene. And like many other discussions, what started as an idea to produce a special edition for bedeseme magazine with the goal to "show the world" the hidden jewels of one of the nicest and warmest places in Europe, soon became the seed to produce something else: the Iberian Fetish Weekend. More than just a party, a weekend full of fetish-related activities: photo shootings, workshops, 2 parties, performers. And those two managed to make that dream come true, in less than 2 months. In June, the first edition of the Iberian Fetish Weekend became a reality. With the help and support of a lot of people (20 models, 5 photographers, several make-up artists, Riggers, DJ's, several locations that made their resources available and, last but not the least, 2 awesome latex brands that came on board and created 2 brand new collections to be presented during IFW: Lovely Latex by Brigitte More (and Snake Less) and Ausrie Fel) that put their trust, time and efforts into this project. We can't thank them enough for that.

Those 2 months were really intense, almost a nightmare (emails, interviews, legal stuff, logistics, discussions, setbacks, last minute changes, etc etc) but the end result made it worth. In such a short time, we managed to make it happen. And that gave us the strength (well, after a couple of weeks' rest afterwards) to start planning the 2nd edition, for June 2016. It's already on its way, and what we can promise is that we - and the team of people that is already tarding to help us - will soon announce the details of something that's gonna be unique, fabulous and unexpected. We're really going the extra mile to surprise and to give the european fetish community, something that they can't miss.

During my time in the Iberian Fetish Weekend of what I am most grateful she is to have met so many artists, from different places and with very different personalities but with something in common that was the world of BDSM, fetish, etc ...

It was a mixture of quite complicated to overcome but with the passing hours just to understand all languages.

I've gotten very good friendships and contacts thanks to the event.

But above all, designs by More Brigitte and Ausrie Fel, were stunning.

Never before he had led latex clothes and did not think the first time was to be designers that level and on a catwalk. One of the suits has finished hanging in my closet because I could not resist.

There were many days of work, madness, stress and I think the people who see it from outside is thought to be a simple thing to bear.

It really is something that takes a lot of dedication and you need a big team that is coordinated to run.

But the effort was worth it.

One afternoon at the end of May I was checking information in facebook about events and plans to make on summer's time. When I was a little tired appeared the name of one event called "Iberian Fetish Weekend", immediately my attention was completely captured to know the content and program of this special affair published. The aim and sense of this event seems to me interesting taking part the implications of words like "fetish" and "Iberian" which location would be in Barcelona.

I wonder myself if I could take part on that occurrence, as a fetish feet female lover that is always interested in fetish experiences, creating one space within the program of professional photography of the event that explore truly the largest fetish knowing in the world that it's characterized by so much rejection as attractiveness, fetishism of female foot. For this reason I contact with the Organization in order to be able to collaborate presenting myself through proposition of take photos fetish feet professional photography.

After a contact time between who would be professional photographers and participants, soon came the awaited day of the fetish session.

To my surprise it was not prepared for one typical photography session in which one is limited to stay time immobile in front of a camera without expressing real sensations. I had to perform a foot fetish session actively with two beautiful ladies, in a context focused by one industrial BDSM's prison, in which our expert photographer would be one interactive director but viewer at same time. This form of act provides amount o reality required in making a session inspired in foot fetish movements.

Ladies, among laughter and looks cheerful, took possession of my body to rest your body making contact with the totality of the soles of their feet. The two hopped over what would come to be the pedestal in which perform their feminine beauty. Carefully but steadily both were walking over and over again shaping their bodies through barefoot, beautiful, and perfectly manicured feet. I felt that any fetishist earnestly wanted to be in my place. Without leaving any break they were incessantly sliding their wonderful soles once again, covering every part of my body. They wanted to step on to the man who had below with the mind set on feeling that feeling would be pressing at every step by the different parties of an athletic male. There was no corner which was not besieged by his feet. His face felt the pleasure of having a man prisoner to feminine power. With whimsical look did not hesitate in his perseverance in mastering a body placed under the enjoyment of hers feet.

Moments passed one so completely out to the reality of the common mortal people. Feeling one object to his whim, I could not believe what my eyes were seeing that moment in every time that Ladies decided to climb my body fixing their foots on it, or if decided to put one feet on top of my face and the other on my most delicate parts, or checking the beating of my heart or my heart rate,...

This was how the fetish scene went with game, in a combination of glamour, submission and desire for the ladies tasting that pleasure by means of the sensitivity of the soles of their wonderful feet in each step taken, completely wonderful for anyone who loves Lady/female foot fetishist.

Iberian Fetish Weekend is a very promising new-comer to the European party scene and I believe it will make it's mark.

Barcelona in June will soon become the place to be for all kinksters.

The event was organized by Diego Garcia and Luis Rocha Dos Reis, who did an amazing job considering how little time they've had to put everything together.

I've had a pleasure of working there as a model and performer.

The kickstart of the weekend for me was a Friday morning photoshoot with Tentesion, whose wife did a splendid job being my translator, as embarrassingly enough I don't speak a word of Spanish. The shoot was held at a ClandestinoBDSM, which was not an easy place to find, especially for a person not so familiar with Barcelona.

It took me an hour to finally make it there and it put my reputation of being extremely punctual into question. Luckily, the photographer was very understanding and we started shooting without further delays. The club was a perfect place for a fetish themed shoot.

In the afternoon we had a shoot with Jose Casquet at La Masia Studio, which was an extremely beautiful location, a house with every room arranged in different styles. My make up was done by Blue Christine Makeup, a fantastic person to work with. We did a fetish glamour style, showing off designs by Tiina Rikala latex and Ausrie Fel.

In the evening there was an IFW pre-party at Club Rosas Cinco, unfortunately I couldn't make it there because of my poor health. Fate had it that this weekend I was struggling with a flu, and crazy work schedule definitely did not help in improving my well being.

Saturday morning we had a photoshoot with Alex Perez and Eris Maximo at Eris' beautiful studio apartment with a sea view. It was pure pleasure working with these two, fun and giggles on top of extreme professionalism. My favorite combination. Our themes were latex in the scorching sun and pony play in the bedroom. I preferred the air conditioned bedroom..

Saturday evening was the main event. It was held at an Upload club in Poble Espanyol, an absolutely perfect venue, spacey, air conditioned and with a good sound system. It was easy to find as well, only 10 minutes walk from Placa Espanya. I did not get lost this time! All models had to be at the venue at 9pm, the door open for the guests at 11pm, so that gave us a full two hours to rehearse and do soundcheck.

I was doing a catwalk for Ausrie Fel as well as performing my own show, so unfortunately I've spend most of my time in the backstage. The area was very small and hot, luckily the organizers provided us with two big fans to keep us cool, I married one of them and we lived happily ever after. We also had cold drinks and refreshments available.

The organizers were very helpful and cater to our every need, I felt truly spoiled.

Eris Maximo worked effortlessly as a stage manager. She kept everything in check and translated all the necessary info to us non Spanish speakers.

Every show was announced on a big screen on stage with a few minutes countdown, so that the audience wouldn't miss anything and they knew exactly who was on stage at the time.

The catwalk for Ausrie Fel went smoothly, every model on my team did a great job. Ausrie was a very nice person to work with, kind and understanding. I'm happy I got to walk for her and wear her amazing outfits for photo shoots.

We were asked to join the audience after the show and do a little mingling. I had to go back backstage soon after to get ready for my pony play.

My co-performer was a Spanish vixen Bastet, she was real fun to be on stage with.

My show was around 4:30 am and in all honesty I was a bit exhausted from the heat, flu and stress. I had fun performing despite of those things and I was very happy with the audiences' positive response.

After the show was done, I was finally free to enjoy the party, I danced one song, drank one beer, crawled into a taxi and was on my merry way home.

All in all it was a great experience, I'm very happy I was a part of it :)

In a tweet size, who's Erothiko?

I'm a lifelong fetishist from Lisbon who loves organizing stuff.

You are one of the most active members of the Portuguese fetish community. How long have you been around?

I registered my nickname on the IRC network on July 19th 1999. I had been around for some time before that in "lurking mode" just observing, learning and absorbing. And then I finally had a name for what I felt and some people to talk to about it so I decided to "pop out" and the rest is history.

Tell us about how was it to be a fetishist in Portugal in those early days?

I guess it was a bit harder than today. Information was scarce, clothing and footwear was even scarcer and actually getting your hands on something was difficult. It was the age of IRC chat rooms and newsgroups, life was much more text-based than image-based back then on the Internet. I think that actually contributed to bigger thrills whenever you managed to meet with a fellow fetishist or find a pair of thigh boots on a shop somewhere. Perhaps that's why a lot of "old timers" talk about how everything is so "instant" these days with Facebook and Fetlife. People want to see and know everything about the others right away, and they hop on to the next one if it takes too long.

I remember that I would invest a lot of time to get to know someone online before taking the next step "would you like to go out for a drink?". Long conversations and emails and very few images. There were no digital cameras, very few scanners and hey!, were you really keen to develop a roll of film with your kinky photos at the photo store? This led to some great disappointments but also some very good surprises.

The "community" in Lisbon was a tight group back in 2000, with a well-known "unofficial" waterhole where we would meet on Friday and Saturday nights. I'd wear my leather opera gloves under my motorcycle jacket and my leather trousers and feel great about it! Hehehe

I feel we were all a kind of pioneers in Portugal. People came with websites, forums and blogs – some of them still around – to both share and learn with others.

Personally I loved the "early days".

You've been the mentor and producer of several "Gatherings". Tell us about that.

I'm actually the founder of "The Gathering Party" and organized all 14 editions, with the help of several people.

I thought of The Gathering Party back in 2002 for a very simple reason: I wanted to go to a fetish party and, back then, I couldn't afford all the travelling, dress code clothes and hotels to go to a party somewhere in Europe, so I just organized my own.

The first one was a small one, obviously, with around 60 people, but it was a real blast and we genuinely enjoyed every minute of it! Then came the requests for another one, and another, and another. From 60 people the party grew to 320 people in a couple of years. I started enforcing the dress code rather than suggesting it. I believe the party lost a bit of quantity with that move but gained a LOT of quality.

The Gathering Party 14 was the last edition back in 2011. Then the big bad wolf of the economic crisis hit us hard and I decided I rather not organize it than organize without the proper conditions and put the project on hold, waiting for sunnier days.

But there's always the organizer in me saying "we could do this or that" so in 2014 I came up with another concept: push up the dress code a tad and make it more intimate. I think the name says it all - Fetish Obsession. I want it to become a really fetishists gathering and after this year's Fetish Obsession I'd say it's looking good, let's see how it goes in 2016.

I had the 15th edition of The Gathering Party scheduled for late 2014, with all the shows and the space booked, but due to a freak traffic accident I suffered in June 2014 I had to cancel it. I'm still not 100% recovered from it but I'll get back to The Gathering Party when I feel my old self again.

How do you see the fetish scene in Portugal nowadays?

From my personal fetishist perspective Portugal still has some catching up to do on the "fetish side of things" (the BDSM side is doing better). People are still a bit reluctant about the dress code or dressing up for a specific party. I believe this is a consequence of Portugal's purchase power that is still below the European average, the fact that we have little access to fetish clothes and shoes other than the Internet and finally I believe it's a cultural trait: the Portuguese are not confessed exhibitionists, they like to keep it behind closed doors.

I see the Portuguese scene growing exponentially and fragmenting a bit, but I guess that's only natural. There are a lot of new people with initiative and that's really good! We now have a couple of clubs we can go to for some kinky fun and I would say that's a huge achievement. We have photographers and models producing some very interesting fetish images and also very interesting initiatives, like the colloquiums part of the Lisbon Fetish Weekend, which I hope will be resurrected soon.

I believe there is "good blood" coming up in the scene to drive it forward in the future!

Following other initiatives that have happened for several years on the Portuguese BDSM and Fetishist's scene, the Lisbon Fetish Weekend has come up with a different focus: to bridge the gap between society and the BDSM and Fetish communities. However, we wanted such bridging to be an informed and carefully produced one, according to the way of being and to the philosophy of the organisation of this event that had so far three editions: 2012, 2013 and 2014.

The Lisbon Fetish Weekend has thus emerged in the national and European scenes with a new concept of "Fetish Weekend", attaching to a Kinky Party several other events that went beyond the leisure and entertainment that the party provides but proved equally essential to the internal settling of the Portuguese BDSM and Fetish communities.

Such events went inevitably through the artistic and scientific impact that the BDSM and Fet-ishism increasingly have both in Portugal and worldwide. It was this "footprint" - already marked, embossed and with a sign of due respect - that the Lisbon Fetish Weekend intended to show in an integrated manner.

In a partnership with the Kiel Fetish Film Festival (Germany), the event included several fetish movie screenings, sheltering in its latest edition the Lisbon Fetish Film Festival. Beyond the seventh art, the event featured in every edition national and international photo exhibitions as well as comic book exhibitions related to the theme, fetish photo contests aiming professional and amateur photographers, fashion shows with national fashion designers, exhibitions of objects used in Fetishism and BDSM, literary exhibitions with technical and romanticised works related to the theme and scientific conferences with speakers and panels debate teams from different academic areas to raise questions and bring light to scientific issues around or directly related with BDSM and fetish. The event also integrated different workshops (shibari, drawing, etc.) as well as performances from artists related to the International BDSM / Fetish scenes during the Kinky Parties.

The Lisbon Fetish Weekend was specially marked by its innovative character and considering the feedback the organisation received, both from the general community and the BDSM and Fetish communities', it was, despite very intense, quite rewarding. The feeling is: mission accomplished!

When the German physician Richard von Krafft-Ebing included the terms sadism and masochism, in the late nineteenth century, in his work on sexual disorders, he turned into medical conditions behaviours that, until then, were seen as mere curiosities. The definition of non-normative sexual behaviours as psychiatric categories endured, and people exhibiting such behaviours were labeled dangerous and mentally ill and, as a consequence, felt the need to hide their sexual preferences.

In the post-World War II in the US, the leather subculture came to assert their sexuality and demand visibility. This subculture, initially only associated with the gay community but later understood as a subset of the BDSM community, claim the public spaces and the right to a sexual BDSM citizenship. This movement, which occurs mainly from the 1970s, can be seen as the beginning of the end of what was inaugurated by Krafft-Ebing. The coming out of BDSM practitioners opened doors to its normalization

If the creation of the medical categories of sadism and masochism, as well as the beginning of the BDSM social movement, can be seen as landmarks, the recent trilogy of EL James "The Fifty shades of Grey", published in 2011, is, for better or for worse, an indisputable milestone. These books, which gained popularity especially among the female audience, being called "porn for moms", sold more than 100 million copies. It was adapted to the cinema and sold-out several theatres around the world, with thousands of tickets sold before its debut (pertaining only to Portugal and Spain such advance sales accounted for almost 200.000 tickets). Thus, this novel popularised, trivialised and established as a trend behaviours that were hidden and seen as bizarre.

In the eighteenth century, the erotic and revolutionary literature of the Marquis de Sade, and, in the next century, the romantic stories of female domination by Leopold von Sacher-Masoch associated sadomasochism to the aristocracy and the bourgeoisie. The art movement of the mid-twentieth century broadened the spectrum of sadomasochism and displayed images and behaviours that became counter-cultural - from the stylised homoerotic fetishism of Tom of Finland to the iconic black-and-white of the New York underground bondage of Maplethorpe, from the book "The Velvet Underground" by Micheal Leigh till the "Venus in Furs" of Lou Reed and John Cale's band. With the work of EL James, despite its uncertain literary quality and distorted image of BDSM, some fetish behaviours and those who hide behind the BDSM acronym were included in the dominant and popular culture. With the help of the media, what previously seemed belonging to a small group then became popular.

The representation in popular culture and the media can only be fruitful. Sadomasochism, fetish, bondage, the leather and latex came out of the shadows. Making visible and normalizing the kinky fosters the number of practitioners - many of them beginners - and encourages diversity. The current BDSM scene inhabited by kinksters, fetishists, dominants and submissives, sadists and masochists, the lovers of bondage, age-play, sissification or cuckolding, among such a variety of roles, is a world with many colours, such as the white light. This diversity is reflected even in the rejection of heteronormativity and gender binary and, also, in the recognition of different types of intimate relationships and of non-standardized ideals of beauty. An exclusive community evolves to an inclusive community. Diversity leads to richness, and this is the touchstone to reject the poor sexualities, whether normative or not.

To be part of the Iberian Fetish Weekend 2015 has been one of the reasons why I feel motivated to follow in the world of alternative photography. It was a well organized for people who wanted to enjoy something that everyone present passionate about event: the world of fashion and fetish photography. To be part of the event type so far looked with envy and remoteness in Germany or the Netherlands is something unexpected.

From the beginning, it was easy to communicate with Luis and Diego to outline the schedule and order of things. Not forgetting to Eris was always on the ball to get stronger!

The selected designers are spectacular in their styles, Ausrie with its dark and Lovely Latex modernism with classic and sophisticated looks. Speaking both as Ausrie Snake Brigitte and always was much easier than I thought, always ready to answer queries and advise us on what we might need. Besides offering us the chance for some outfits with which anyone would have dreamed!

In my case, I could make great photographers shootings with 3: Damian Pissarra, Tentesion Agustin and Luis de Rochas. Each in his style, realized three sessions of spectacular photos that will form part of my memories forever. Although none of these shootings have been possible without the collaboration of Sybil La-Flamme (as co-session), Andrew (who rose early Sunday to open up in Rosas 5), Virginia (always concerned that everything was in place) and Manel (we Oops helped).

And especially thank the collaboration of a professional (and better person) makeup world: Sophie Cat, thanks for being there with me in all my meetings and the day of the party, always worried about who was great.

Although most fun for everyone believe it was Saturday's bash Upload Room, where there were great performances and where paraded with great designs latex. There I surround myself with spectacular models, with whom I had a luxury; some known and others were the discovery of a night to remember! Besides discovering 3 international gems like Katie, Louise and Honeyhair, each more beautiful and friendly!

So if I have to put a note on my experience in the IFW 2015, it is a 9; and that point it off for me after fiesta up early Saturday !!!!

So: Diego, Luis, 2016 call me, please!

Live long and prosper !!!!

It was a pleasure to be a part of Iberian Fetish Weekend. First, I've to highlight the opportunity given to us to do photo shoots with several photographers and different productions in an organized manner and previously scheduled by the organization. In addition to photo shoots , the Meet and Great and the Fetish Party were super fun and the programs were excellent. The fact that participate in a party where , in addition to shows, the performances also were equally included in the program , was a fantastic experience! It remains for me to thank the organization for the initiative, professionalism and rigor that allowed me to have fun and, at the same time, really good conditions to work in a very professional way, with a very professional team. Congratulations for the bold approach "sea , sun , sangria and sin " and I hope to be present in the next issue , because if the first was like that , it will certainly be much better !
